

Collier welcome

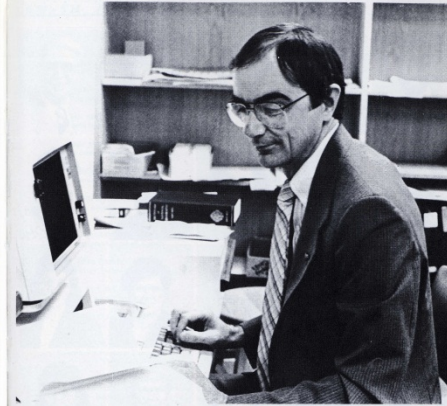

.....
Dean of Library Services Garry Warren
has found a new home
.....

Dr. Garry Warren, the new dean of library services, said the "courteous, gracious people at UNA are one reason I came here."
He said many faculty members and students have brought gifts to his home, and some faculty members gave a luncheon in his honor.
Dr. Warren said he thinks the most appealing thing about the university is its size. "UNA is large enough to offer most of the advantages of a large university, yet small enough for personal attention to each student," he said.

Dr. Warren said the students are very courteous and he enjoys working with them.
Dr. Warren is "very pleased" with the library staff as well. He said, "They are a very professional staff."

Dr. Warren said he hopes to continue to build on the positive experience of Collier Library, and he wants to strengthen the relationship between the library staff and the rest of the university community.
Dr. Warren's hobbies include running and working around his home as a handyman.
The Warren family includes his wife and their two sons. Mrs. Warren enjoys the family life in Florence and this location allows them to take frequent trips to Martin, Tennessee, Dr. Warren's hometown.

.....
By Pride Sherrill
.....

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY is invaluable for keeping library records straight. Dr. Garry Warren is dean of Library Services. This is his first year at the university. (Photo by John Amis)

REGULAR STAFF MEETINGS also help keep Collier Library running smoothly. Associate Librarian Kenneth O'Neal listens as Dean Warren presides over a meeting of library personnel. (Photo by John Amis)

