NEW LIBRARY RECEIVES VISITORS OPEN HOUSE SUNDAY AFTERNOON WITH MISS M. EMERSON HOSTESS

Student Assistants Direct Numerous Guests Through Building Made Beautiful With Spring Flowers

Last Sunday in the new library Miss Myrtle Emerson, librarian, held open house with Miss Martha Porterfield, assistant librarian, joint hostess. A group of students assisted in directing the visitors throughout the building. These included: Margaret Geer, Dorothy Calvin, Mitchell McClellan, Woodrow McCarver, Marjorie Burlison, and Lucile Wiggins.

Numerous visitors from the Tri-Cities viewed the library amid a profusion of spring flowers.

The library, matching the administration building in architectural lines, is of the same type of brick and Alabama limestone. It is large enough to accommodate all activities incident to library work. In addition to a large and comfortable reading room there is proper provision for the librarian and her assistants.

The new building contains more than 30,000 volumes as well as 2,000 periodicals, more than 16,000 clippings on various subjects, 12,000 descriptive pictures and artists' reproductions, 200 current periodicals, and 5000 government documents procured through the selective plan.

With its improved facilities the library is a decided asset to the college, students and faculty members state.
