*"Clearly, the Cold War could not have been called dead as long as Eastern Europe was not free."
— President George H.W. Bush in interview with Dr. Christopher Maynard*

Christopher Maynard, Associate Professor of History and Chair; B.A., 1994, Lee University; M.A., 1997, Louisiana State University; Ph.D., 2001, Louisiana State University.

Dr. Christopher Maynard is chair of the Department of History and Political Science at the University of North Alabama. A native of Louisiana, Dr. Maynard received his Ph.D. in history from LSU and taught as Assistant Professor of History and Political Science at Dakota State University (Madison, South Dakota) before joining UNA in 2005. At UNA, he served as coordinator for the B.A./B.S.-social science program and, later, as Director of Graduate Studies for the M.A.-history program before being appointed as department chair in 2008.

In the fall of 2008, Texas A&M University Press published Out of the Shadow: George H.W. Bush and the End of the Cold War. While writing the book, Dr. Maynard received two Peter and Edith O'Donnell research grants from the George Bush Presidential Library in College Station, Texas; he also received a grant to conduct research at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library in Simi Valley, California. In addition to the use of primary documents housed at these two presidential libraries, Dr. Maynard interviewed President George H.W. Bush, as well as numerous officials from the Reagan and Bush administrations such as Colin Powell, James Baker, and Brent Scowcroft, among others. The result was a book that Pulitzer Prize finalist and renowned historian H.W. Brands calls "an insightful and thought-provoking account of a crucial yet underappreciated chapter in recent world history." In a recent review in The Journal of American History, Robert J. Spitzer of the State University of New York writes, "In this important and meticulous new book about George H.W. Bush's foreign policy, Christopher Maynard walks the reader through the four-year paradigm-shifting period in which the Cold War came to an end, the world changed from bipolar to multipolar as the Soviet Union came apart, and new threats began to emerge." John Robert Greene, author of The Presidency of George Bush, adds: "Maynard has written a superb chronicle of an underappreciated moment in diplomatic history—that moment when the first President Bush successfully managed the end of the Cold War. It is a moment in history that is rife with lessons, and it is a moment that Maynard narrates with grace and precision. An outstanding book." Out of the Shadow has received uniformly excellent reviews and was nominated for the Stuart L. Bernath Book Prize (Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations), which recognizes and encourages "distinguished research and writing by scholars of American foreign relations."

Dr. Maynard has made numerous conference presentations, most recently presenting "George Bush and the Persian Gulf War (1990-91): An Internationalist Approach to Foreign Policy," at the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations Annual Conference, the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio (June 26-29, 2008). He continues to write about modern political history and has three new articles that were published this spring: "End of the Cold War," Encyclopedia of U.S. Political History (Washington, D.C.: Congressional Quarterly Press, 2010), 90-93; "George H.W. Bush," Encyclopedia of U.S. Political History (Washington, D.C.: Congressional Quarterly Press, 2010), 39-43; "George W. Bush," Encyclopedia of U.S. Political History (Washington, D.C.: Congressional Quarterly Press, 2010), 43-48.

"Another Exciting Day at the University of North Alabama"

Lawrence J. Nelson, Professor of History; B.A., 1966, Evangel College; A.M., 1967, Ph.D., 1972, University of Missouri at Columbia.

Larry Nelson liked college so much that he decided to stay for a lifetime. Unsure of his major, he stumbled into an undergraduate class with a dynamic professor and it changed his life. He says that early in his career he never developed a sophisticated teaching philosophy because from his first days as a nervous teaching assistant in 1968 students were kind and generous. Encouraged by that kindness he became a sort of "cook" without a recipe, just a bunch of carefully-selected ingredients that seemed to come out right. But the responsibility he senses towards the young men and women in his classes extends beyond the classroom as he and his wife, Verlie, have opened their hearts and their home for many years for what he calls "edifying gatherings" designed to build up and encourage. He urges students to become independent thinkers, to make up their own minds, and not be pushed around by the culture, the media, friends, or even university professors. History, he says, is not a bunch of facts and dates, but is actually a great liberator, allowing us to find out why things are the way they are. Everybody likes stories and, if told right, they reveal great significance of the human experience. Larry has also been a frequent emcee at various fundraising campus events, from Step-Sing to "Big Man on Campus," "UNA's Got Talent," and Panhellenic auctions. He rarely declines a speaking opportunity on or off campus.

A native of Illinois, Larry grew up there and in New York, and has lived in Missouri and California. But as a Yankee he considers himself fortunate to live in the South, and very fortunate to be at UNA for 25 years. His wife is from Canada and is also fully at home in Alabama. Teaching is his "calling" and he has found UNA to be a beautiful place to fulfill that mission, and feels very privileged to work with such outstanding students and colleagues. He plans to retire only when he stops loving what he does and those he serves, an unlikely prospect anytime soon.

A Professor of History, Dr. Nelson received a B.A. (1966) from Evangel College and an A.M. (1967) and Ph.D. (1972) from the University of Missouri, and subsequently attended seminary in California. A recipient of teaching and faculty awards at three different institutions, including UNA's Alpha Lambda Delta's "Outstanding Teacher of the Year" in 1996, Dr. Nelson has also received publishing and service awards, including the Bottimore Outstanding Academic Achievement Award in 2004 for two published books that provided funding for further academic research. He says none of it would have happened the way it did without the support and encouragement of his wife of 41 years, Verlie Nelson. He sees his work at UNA as a joint effort with her. "I married way out of my league," he says. "When I listen to her things seem to come out right."

"Knowing and understanding geography is life-enhancing and life-changing."

William R. Strong, Professor and Chair, Department of Geography; B.A. in Anthropology, 1966, M.A., 1969, Ph.D., in Geography, 1979, University of Texas in Austin, and GISP (Geographic Information Systems Professional), 2009.

Dr. William (Bill) R. Strong has been a member of the Department of Geography at UNA since 1972. During that time he has seen the profession of geography grow to world-wide importance, the number of geography majors increase to almost 150, and the geography faculty at UNA increase from 3 faculty members to 7. As chair, he was responsible for initiating courses in geospatial technologies, gaining approval of the Geographic Research Center, and writing grants to fund early research in Shoals industrial development activities using Geographic Information Systems. His current teaching interests include courses in geospatial science with regional interest in India, Latin America and the Middle East.

Dr. Strong was a founding member of the Society of Alabama Geographers and Educators and a founding co-coordinator of the Alabama Geographic Alliance which has received more than $500,000 in grants since its inception. On leave of absence for two years from UNA, he served as the Geographer-in-Residence at the National Geographic Society in Washington, D.C. For his work in geography education, he received the Distinguished Geography Educator Award from the National Geographic Society and the Distinguished Teaching Award from the National Council for Geographic Education. At UNA, he received the Eleanor Gaunder Phi Kappa Phi Excellence in Teaching Award from the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and the President's Award of Excellence.

Dr. Strong served as Interim Vice-President for Academic Affairs and has been a member and chair of many committees including the Strategic Planning and Budget Committee, the University Curriculum Committee, University Technology Committee, Promotion Committees and Search Committees. He has been faculty sponsor of the Geography Club, Honor Society of Omicron Delta Kappa, and the United Nations of the University of North Alabama. He is a past president of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi. For almost ten years, he was an adjunct professor in HPER where he taught self-defense courses. On three occasions, he served as the geography consultant to the Social Studies Course of Study Committee at the Alabama State Department of Education.

Dr. Strong conducted field research in India for both his M.A. and Ph.D. and has more recently completed research in Costa Rica and Peru. He co-directed a summer field course for UNA students in 2008 in Costa Rica. In the fall 2009, the International Rotary district 6860 selected him as the team leader for the Rotary International Group Studies Exchange with District 3132, state of Maharashtra, India, with travel from December 26, 2009 – January 28, 2010. He is currently working on several projects which include the proposal for a new Master of Science in Geospatial Science, another international course in Latin America, mentoring plans for two new faculty members, and a strategic plan in geography education as a co-coordinator of the Alabama Geographic Alliance supported through funding from the National Geographic Society.

RECIPIENT: ELEANOR P. GAUNDER PHI KAPPA PHI EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING AWARD

"Students need to know that teachers appreciate them for who they are and what they are trying to accomplish, and they feel this when their professors show interest in them as individuals and not just faces in the crowd or names on the class roster."

Dr. Keith William Lindley, Assistant Professor, Modern Foreign Languages; B.A., 1987, University of South Florida; M.A., 1992, Ph.D., 2002, University of Florida.

Keith Lindley received his Ph.D. in Romance Languages and Literatures from the University of Florida in 2002. His areas of expertise include French and Spanish Sociolinguistics and Second Language Acquisition theory. His dissertation, "Language Practices in the Transnational Haiti", focused on language choices and attitudes in the Haitian community of South Florida. While at the University of Florida, Dr. Lindley was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa and received numerous awards for teaching and scholarship, including the university-wide Graduate Student Teaching award, as well as a $14,000 fellowship from the United States government for Caribbean studies.

Since coming to the University of North Alabama in 2003, Dr. Lindley has taught the full range of courses in French language and literature as well as first-year Spanish. He has organized and led numerous trips to Paris and other areas of France for students, UNA faculty and staff, and community members, the most recent in March of 2010. He has led students to French-speaking Canada, and actively recruits and sends students (three this summer) to Université Laval in Québec City for intensive French language study. In July of 2010, he co-led, with Dr. Claudia Vance, a group of sixteen students to San José, Costa Rica, for intensive Spanish-language coursework. Dr. Lindley volunteers his time as an interpreter with the Hispanic community of Northwest Alabama. Each month, he joins a group of doctors, nurses, pharmacists, and Spanish-English interpreters who donate basic medical services to the uninsured at the "Clínica Grátis de Muscle Shoals." In the past year, Dr. Lindley has worked to develop and implement online courses as part of the university's ongoing effort to expand its distance learning offerings. For the first time, the popular FL 301 Culture Through Cinema course will be offered via the internet this summer, as will Beginning French I and II. These courses are expected to become regular features of the schedule of course offerings in the Department of Foreign Languages. In November, 2009, Dr. Lindley underwent training at the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages conference in San Diego, California, to become a Certified Oral Proficiency Interviewer in French. The ACTFL Oral Proficiency Interview sets the standard for assessment tools in determining oral proficiency in a wide range of languages other than English. It is used by a variety of national organizations including the United States Department of Defense, as well as by universities across the country.

The time he spends in the classroom with UNA students, however, is Dr. Lindley's great professional passion. He enjoys getting to know those he teaches, and believes that a successful educator conveys far more than just a set of knowledge or skills. Students need to know that teachers appreciate them for who they are and what they are trying to accomplish, and they feel this when their professors show interest in them as individuals and not just faces in the crowd or names on the class roster. In such an atmosphere, learning is facilitated, no matter what the subject matter might be. Teachers who keep students at arm's length with their words and actions miss the opportunity to make the learning experience maximally rewarding for both parties involved. He believes one of the many strengths of our university is its size, which offers a relaxed atmosphere in which students and professors can interact through office visits, club activities, and extracurricular activities such as travel abroad. UNA is primarily a teaching institution and, in such an academic context, a professor's influence over his students' lives can constitute a valuable personal and professional legacy.
