All college and departmental guidelines are intended to provide guidance to faculty members seeking to meet the University’s criteria for tenure and promotion set forth in the Faculty Handbook, sections 2.5.1 - 2.5.4. All faculty members should familiarize themselves with those principles, which govern the processes and standards for all departments and colleges of the University. This document is intended to provide clarity to the appropriate sections of the Faculty Handbook.

As UNA’s largest and most diverse college, the College of Arts and Sciences is composed of seventeen academic departments encompassing more than twenty disciplines. Methods of demonstrating professional performance may vary with the traditions and goals of distinct disciplines. Teaching methods vary, as do the forms of scholarly or artistic performance, but all tenure-track faculty members are expected to demonstrate a pattern of sustained cumulative accomplishment in teaching, scholarly or creative performance, and service.

All faculty members in the College of Arts and Sciences should recognize the following common expectations:

Teaching is a foundational professional function of faculty members at the University of North Alabama. A record of demonstrable success in teaching, as a UNA faculty member, is expected of every successful applicant for tenure or promotion in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Scholarship and creative accomplishment are essential to the academic profession. Every successful candidate for tenure or promotion is expected to provide convincing evidence of a pattern of scholarly or creative accomplishment appropriate to his or her discipline during the period of employment at UNA. Scholarship should include research or other forms of intellectual discovery made available to professional peers through publication and/or presentation beyond this university and the local area. For those in the performing or visual arts, creative performance should include performances or exhibitions for audiences beyond the local area. Peer review or review by qualified critics is a proper consideration in the assessment of both scholarship and creative performance. Departments may consider professional consulting as an appropriate form of scholarship if the results of the consultation are made available to a professional audience beyond the proprietary interests.

Service is an indispensable element in the professional performance of each UNA faculty member. The operation of a university is dependent on services provided by its faculty members beyond their classrooms, laboratories, and studios. Applicants for tenure or promotion are expected to present a record of effective service to the university, the community, and the profession during their period of employment at UNA.

While previous accomplishments will be recognized, special consideration will be given to accomplishments during the period of employment at UNA and since the faculty member’s last promotion. In evaluating teaching, scholarly or creative performance, and service, it is appropriate to consider both the quality and the extent of each element. Especially in scholarly and creative performance, there are recognized hierarchies of organizations, journals, publishers, forms of dissemination, and venues for performance or exhibition in each discipline. It is appropriate to take into account the professional recognition of the instrument or venue through which scholarship or creative performance is presented.

More specific interpretation is provided by departmental guidelines. Faculty members are invited to discuss questions or concerns in advance of application for tenure or promotion with the department chair, tenured members of the department, and the dean.
In making its recommendations, the Peer Promotion Committee and the Tenure Review Committee of the Department of History & Political Science will be guided by the policies in the University of North Alabama’s Faculty Handbook and by the additional criteria listed below. Candidates for tenure and/or promotion are expected to be familiar with the provisions of these documents. Since the mission of the university encompasses teaching, scholarship, and service, faculty members must strive for excellence in all three areas. Collegiality¹, adherence to UNA’s Code of Conduct, and active participation in departmental affairs and activities are integral factors in fulfilling these requirements and are important considerations in all decisions concerning tenure and promotion.

A. Standards for Tenure (see Faculty Handbook 2.5)

Since candidates may become eligible for tenure with varying levels of overall experience, the department will not apply fixed or quantitative standards for tenure. Instead, the department will weigh qualitative contributions of candidates in teaching, research, and service, and determine if a candidate is likely to progress through the ranks.

B. Standards for Promotion (see Faculty Handbook 2.5)

Considerations of enrollment, budget, time, rank, and personnel limitations may affect the final university determination to award promotion; however, they will in no way influence departmental recommendations.

Assistant Professor
Candidates for the rank of Assistant Professor must have completed the doctoral degree in the relevant field and have demonstrated ability as teachers and scholars. The appraisal of scholarship shall be based on the quality of the completed dissertation or published work, letters of recommendation, and a continuing commitment to significant research and writing. The appraisal of teaching shall be based on peer and student evaluations and letters of recommendation. Candidates may have had little opportunity for service but should have demonstrated a willingness to participate in committees and in other institutional activities.

Associate Professor
Candidates for the rank of Associate Professor must have made a contribution to their field. Evidence of this contribution may consist of the authorship of a peer-reviewed book or scholarly articles (including journal articles and book chapters) and/or participation in and presentation of research to meetings of professional organizations, recognition in the profession through prizes and fellowships, etc. Excellent teaching is essential. Active participation in departmental, college, university, professional and/or community affairs is important.

¹ Collegiality is defined as “1. the sharing of authority among colleagues... 2. considerate and respectful conduct among colleagues or an atmosphere, relationship, etc. characterized by this.” Webster’s New World College Dictionary. 2009. It has been defined by the courts as “the capacity to relate well and constructively to the comparatively small bank of scholars on whom the fate of the university rests.”

Revised 8-2009
Professor
Candidates for promotion to the rank of Professor must have a substantial record in all three areas: teaching, research, and service. In addition, a candidate must have an excellent record of professional activities. Candidates for Professor must publish, or have accepted for publication a scholarly book or its equivalent in the form of several articles in refereed publications.

C. Evaluation Criteria for Tenure and Promotion

Candidates may use the following criteria as a guide when assembling evidence of quality teaching, research, and service. The lists and descriptions are not meant to be exhaustive, but rather a starting point for assessing a candidate’s performance. Likewise, candidates will not be expected to have accomplished every item listed in this section.

Teaching
The Peer Promotion Committee shall judge teaching by the following criteria:

1. Classroom evaluations by peers that consider subject-knowledge, organization and clarity, ability to stimulate interest, ability to lead discussions.
2. Student course evaluations administered according to university procedures. In weighing the evaluations, circumstances such as type, size, method of delivery, and time of courses shall be considered.
3. Appraisal of syllabi, reading lists, new course development, course revisions, use of research and scholarship in the classroom, and range of courses taught.
4. Other data that might be included in a teaching portfolio, including participation in teaching workshops.

Additional evidence in quality teaching may be submitted as is appropriate for individual candidates:

1. Supervision of M.A. theses.
2. Teaching awards or improvement of instruction grants.
3. Success of students (especially graduate students) in obtaining professional appointments.

Research
The Peer Promotion Committee shall judge scholarship on the basis of evaluations by colleagues within the department and by peers outside the university who are recognized experts in the candidate’s field. In making such judgments about the quality of a candidate’s research, the committee shall follow the usual standards for scholarly excellence, including originality, significance to the field, depth and rigor of research, methodological sophistication, accuracy, and quality of writing. Evidence of scholarly achievement in the Department of History & Political Science is based on publication of books and articles; editing books, journals, and other publications; presentation of papers at professional meetings; publication of book reviews/participation in colloquia, symposia, etc.; supervision of theses of graduate students; and receipts of research grants. Since not all publications are equivalent, some differentiation will be made among them. Additionally, candidates may choose to supplement their portfolio via external evaluations of their scholarship.
Service

All members of the department are expected to participate in department meetings and functions and to serve on department committees. Departmental faculty members are expected to devote reasonable amounts of their time to college and university committees and assignments. The Peer Promotion Committee shall base its judgment of service on evidence gathered from the candidate’s portfolio, which may include the candidate’s supervisors or colleagues in the service role. In making this assessment, the committee shall consider the importance of the assignment, the time required, and the value of the candidate’s contribution.

D. Application Process

Candidates for tenure and/or promotion must notify the Department Chair according to the timeline set by the faculty handbook. The candidates will be responsible for submitting documentation concerning achievement in teaching, research, and service that conforms to college and university requirements in time to meet department, college and university deadlines. Prior to submission, candidates are encouraged to consult with committee members in order to improve their portfolio but may not add or delete anything from their dossiers following departmental review.

E. Composition and Functioning of Departmental Committees

The Department's Peer Promotion Committee consists of all tenured professors who are not applying for promotion except the Department Chair who will make her/his own recommendation. The Department Tenure Committee is composed of all tenured faculty. Voting will be by secret ballot counted at an official meeting and spouses are not eligible to vote.

The Department Chair will initiate the first Peer Promotion Committee and/or Tenure Committee meeting in any given year and oversee the election of a committee chair to serve for the duration of the year. The quorum for transacting business will be 50 percent of eligible people.

The Peer Promotion Committee and Tenure Committee may designate subcommittees as deemed necessary to carry out specific functions.
Appendix 1: Procedures for Peer Review of Probationary Tenure-Track Faculty in the Department of History and Political Science

Pursuant to the responsibilities of the Tenure Committee of the Department of History and Political Science, peer review and classroom visitation by the department’s tenured faculty (excluding the Department Chair) will take place as follows:

1. Two or more tenured department members will be assigned to visit the classroom of each probationary, tenure-track, faculty within the department.

2. During the first year of employment one such visitation shall take place each semester.

3. Thereafter, annual visits, in the fall semester, will be employed unless the committee deems otherwise.

4. Such visits will be arranged in advance with the probationary faculty member.

5. Using the criteria established in the document entitled, “Department of History and Political Science Observation of Teaching by Probationary Faculty” the reviewers, having consulted, shall issue their reports to the committee and to the candidate.

6. Ultimately, the committee will provide the probationary faculty with written feedback. Copies of the reviewers documents will be forwarded to the Chair of the department.
Appendix 2: Department of History & Political Science Observation of Teaching by Probationary Faculty

Observer:
Instructor observed:
Date:
Classroom:
Class Observed:
Number of Students:
Type of Presentation (i.e., lecture, discussion, film, small groups, etc.):

I. Teaching Style:

Interaction with students:

Audibility, clarity of expression:

Pace of presentation:

Student attentiveness:

Handling of questions:

Body language, mannerisms:

Effective use of time:

Use of texts, maps, images, drawing, etc:

II. Content:

Appropriateness to course/level of instruction:
Coherence of material:

Relation of themes to specifics:

Balanced treatment of topic:

III. Other:

IV. Summary of teaching effectiveness: